DVD/CD/Blu-ray Duplication

Why Duplication and not Replication?

Duplication refers to the act of burning recordable discs on computer drives. The burning process can start immediately upon receipt of the order, whereas the replication process requires a specially made master which can take a few days to make. If yours is a smaller order (under 500 discs), duplication is both faster and more economical for you. If yours is a larger order, (500+ discs), see replication pricing as it is much more economical when higher volume is needed. Nordex duplication prices always include a 4-color disc label.

The cornerstones of any high quality duplication operation are:

- The quality of the recordable media being used.
- The quality and condition of the recorders being used.

Why Nordex?

Nordex uses only the best recordable media on the market and its recorders are impeccably maintained. Additionally, each disc is carefully examined to verify its integrity.

You can order your disc duplication project with full packaging or with no packaging at all.

You can order custom printed packaging or use one of our generic unprinted options.

DVD/CD Replication

Why Replication and not Duplication?

Replication refers to the molding process which converts polycarbonate pellets into finished discs. The replication process requires a specially made master (the Stamper) which is used to make perfect reproductions on an expensive molding machine at a much less per unit cost than duplication. If yours is a larger order (500+ discs) replication is the preferred method of reproduction. If yours is a smaller order (under 500 discs) see duplication pricing.

All replication prices at Nordex include either silk-screen or offset 'on-disc' four color printing.

Nobody matches colors like Nordex.

Why Nordex?

We are not a brokerage house that sends out your work to someone else. All of our CD and DVD work is done in-house and on our own equipment.

Nordex uses only the best replication equipment on the planet. Our staff of extremely knowledgeable personnel both operate and maintain the equipment.

You can order your disc replication project with full packaging or in bulk.

You can order custom printed packaging or use one of our generic unprinted options.

Nordex seeks out and uses only premium products. We invite you to compare our finished product with any other.
